

Biosignal and Bioimage Processing

In this area we are interested in the development of customised, patient specific models as no two patients will be identical. We also use these techniques to develop non-invasive diagnostic tools, particularly for the detection of electrical disturbances within the body.

